DETERMINED OPERATORS AND OB STINATE EMPLOYERS

The Current Reports Favorable to the Strikers-New Company Proposed-The Business Inter-ests of the Country Growing Impatient-Memphis Paralyzed-The Situation

CHICAGO, July 23 .- The striking operators held a meeting Saturday night, at which be tween 700 and 800 were present. The meeting was addressed by t'e members of other local unions and promises were extended of financial aid if needed. Two hundred mem bers were admitted, including clerks in the delivery department of the Western Union. A messages were read from Detroit, Buffalo, New York and other cities, outlining the situation at those points. Members of the brotherhood report that a great many railroad operators came into the city during the day, but that on the facts being represented to them they joined the strikers. About 900 of the striking telegraph operators of New York city went on an appropriate to Lore Branch A most transfer excursion to Long Branch. A meeting of the remainder was held during the day. A dispatch was read from Philadelphia, stating that the strikers there stood firm and would not back down. It was stated that a number of wires and cables were broken during the fire in Vandewater street. There was also read a dispatch stating that the affairs of the Hartford office were in a deplorable condition. The members were advised to keep away from The members were advised to keep away from the Western Union building as it was said that the company had their emissaries working about with the intent if possible to break up and demoralize the brotherhood. It was reported that they had forty-five persons, many of them "plugs," at work sending off dispatches, some of which had accumulated since the 19th inst. From belated dispatches from the north and west the following notes of the situation of the strike last evening are gathered: At Buf-falo the telegraphic situation remains about the same. The striking operators claimed to the same. The striking operators claimed to be gaining hourly accessions, and are watching all the trains for new arrivals. The office is running fairly well, and getting off all messages. At Chicago the clerks in the delivery department of the Western Union company also marched out, without giving any notice. The management announces its ability to fill the places caused by these defections in a borting a like an arrival of the secondarions. to fill the places caused by these defections in a short time. It is rumored that speculative business on 'change is practically still. At Detroit the telegraphic situation took an un-favorable turn for the company, when the day chief operator, his assistant and those other operators who hadr emained at their desks since the strike began, left their places. This leaves the force badly crippled. places. This leaves the force badly crippled. Several additions were made to-day to the force of the Western Union operators in Boston from other places, and to-night there were eighteen men at work. The strikers assert their ranks are fast filling up.

President Dunham, of the Chicago board of President Dunham, of the Chicago board of trade, is in receipt of a request from members of the Milwaukee chamber of commerce to call a meeting of the Chicago board to consider the situation growing out of the telegraphic strike. In deference to this request, and also to the expressed desire of the members of the Chicago board, Mr. Dunham says a special meeting of the board will be called to-day or Treader in case and change occurring the six.

meeting of the board will be called to-day or Tuesday, in case no change occurs in the situation. The Mutual Union and B, and O., telegraph companies are making no attempt to do business, and the office of the latter is closed during the greater part of the day.

THE FORCE ON HAND.

The force of operators, which reputed for duty at the Western Union office this morning numbered about 200, and it was said that none of those at work last week were missing from their posts. Fortunately for the company, business is light at this season of the pany, business is light at this season of the year and as it is still further diminished by the effects of the strike the force at work is ample to attend to all business offered; so at least the Western Union officials say. There was no business left over last night, and this morning all the wires were clear and there was no delay in handling all the matter.

One of the officials said that the outlook was becoming more encouraging every day. He said the force at our command is now more advantageously distributed than at any time since the beginning of the strike, and every thing is working much more smoothly than could have been expected under the circum-stances. By this rearrangement of our forces we hope to avoid in future all those delays which necessarily resulted from the demoral which necessarily resulted from the demoralization 'attending the strike last week. The number of applicants for situations is increasing each day, and before the end of the week we hope to have most of the empty desks supplied. It certainly does not seem as though we were much hampered when we are able to send and receive measures to and from all populs in the ceive messages to and from all points in the south and west. The statement that our bus is without foundation. wire is working clear, and we are getting along about as well as before the strike.

CONFIDENCE OF THE STRIKERS.

The striking telegraph operators held a meeting this morning at Irving Hall, at which chairman John Michell presided. About 500 persons were present, of whom 50 were ladies, and great enthusiasm was manifested Encouraging reports zere received from many poits and dispatches from all over the south and west were read by the chairman. In several points in the south the offices were entirely vacated, as is the case of Charlotte, North Carolina, where the manager and all hands had struck. All lawlessness was forbidden. and it was announced that the brotherhood would assist in the prosecuting of any one found destroying telegraph property. Every one seemed to feel confident that the strike would soon be brought to a close, and the company would concede to the demand of the strikers. Addresses were made by several members of the brotherhood and by John Gowpers, president of the trade and labor unions of this city. The situation in Washington remains unchanged beyond the genington remains unchanged beyond the general statement by the Western Union managers that they have a force sufficient to handle all business offering, nothing can be learned from them. The newspaper correspondents are greatly exercised because some of their dispatches have been stamped "sub-ject to delay," and to-day the officials of two Interruption is attributed to the storm. A report is current here to-night that the Western Union is rejecting cable business in New York, and that the operators at the ends of the cables at Duxbury, Mass., and Hearts Content, N. F., have struck, but these rumors are denied on authority of the Western Union officials. Hearts Content is beyond the Western Union lines. A strike at the two points named would not involve the direct cable company's lines, however, and cable news is coming through the associated press. News from the west and north, obtained from telegraph officials, is to the effect that the Western Union fixed and north obtained from telegraph officials, is to the effect that the Western Union and the the Western Union has asked the Pennsylvania railroad to compel their operators to handle the Western Union business. Mr. Campbell says if they do this he will order all railroad operators to strike immediately.

THE SITUATION IN ATLANTA.

There is no doubt of one thing and that is that the telegraph eperators picked a bad time for the strike, at least so far as Atlanta is concerned. With commercial men there is an unusually small amount of telegraphic correspondence going on. Firms that under correspondence going on. Firms that under ordinary circumstances in the busy season send and receive twenty-five or thirty dispatches per day are not now requiring more than one-sixth of that number. There is some delay in the transmission of the cotton reports in Atlanta, and there is some complaint among the brokers about delays in the handling of messages but there is not much complaint among the merchants who, as was stated are not doing much corresponas was stated, are not doing much correspondence at this time by wire. If the strike nad occurred at the height of the business season it would have caused such great inconvenience that it would have resulted in a speedy demand for an instantaneous settlement of the differences between the employer and the employes. As it is there is not much nterest shown in the matter by the business men of Atlania. A Constitution man who circulated among them for a while yesterday was surprised at the lack of interest in the

In this their determination to assert their rights and squeich the spirit of oppression evinced towards them by the Western Union and other telegraph companies rests a mighty issue, upon the success or failure of which depends in a great degree the future of the va-rious labor and trade unions through-out the United States. MAJOR NICKERSON'S IMPUDENCE. He Reports his Address to the War Department and Demands his Pay.

Washington, July 23.—Major Nickerson as not sailed for Europe. He is supposed to e in Philadelphia, and there is good reason to believe that the war department has an agent there trying to find him with a view of placing him under arrest preparatory to a trial by court martial.

The war department officers last Saturday morning received a letter from him, dated Philadelphia. In it Major Nickerson said he desired to report his monthly address, as is the custom with all retired officers, and gave simply Philadelphia, Pa. He also made plaint about the stoppage of his pay, claiming that he had done nothing that would subject him to court-martial, and that the newspapers had treated him untairly in taking the state-ments of his enemies without giving him a chance to defend himself. In view, however, of the notoriety given him in the matter of the divorce and the bitter feeling existing against him by those in power, he thought it wise to retire to private life. Inclosed, he said, his resignation would be found.

It appears, however, that for some unex plained reason, the resignation was not forth-comi g. It is not believed, any way, that his resignation would be accepted, if received, and every effort will be made to find him and let him stand his chances with a court mar

Washington, July 23.—It may be stated on excellent authority that Lotta, the actress, is married to O. E. Huss, of this city. The marriage took place several months ago, but pub ication of the license was withheld until the join his wife. In a recent letter Lotta in losed to Mr. Huss a draft for $2,500 which he had cashed to-day, utilizing a portion of the funds in giving a swell dinner to a few intimate friends. At this party Mr. Huss presented undoubted proofs of his mar riage to the frolicsome Lotta, and announced that he would leave for New York to morrow, and would attend to business matters in that city prior to his d parture for Europe. It will be remembered that a few weeks ago. when the marriage license of O. E. Huss Charlotte Crabtree was published in the they ever were before."

MAKING PREPARATIONS TO SALL IN THE ALASKA ON TUESDAY.

Will Freddie Go with Her?-All Dudedom Greatly Excited-The Mysterious Lounger at the Fifth Avenue Hotel and What He Latends to Do -Luly's First Bine Fish Catch.

rom the New York Journal. Excitement over the threatened departure f Mrs. Langtry has reached fever heat in oudedom, and it is rumored that efforts will be made to delay, as long as possible, the hour of her sailing. Preparations aboard the steamship Alaska are being pushed with great energy, so that everything may be in readiness Tuesday morning. Meanwhile the fair "Lily" is cavorting around the United States n her special parlor car. It seems that her marvellous catch of one blue fish some time ago almost transported her with delight and since then she has been eager to catch another one. Yesterday the car was stopped on the banks of the Merrimac river, and the "Lily," accompanied by Signor Talboys, Mrs. Roberts, Charles Mendum, Mr. Schwab and the ever present Freddie, descended to the bank and proceeded to fish. By an ingenious device Freddie contrived to conceal a monster blue ish, which he had purchased several days te ore, under his coat. The little of was neatly arranged. Mrs. Langtry was heatly arranged. Mr. Schwab and Mr. Schwab and Mrs. Roberts engaged her in an animated conversation. For the ostensible purpose of attaching the bate, Freddie picked up the hooks, fastened the blue fish to them and tossed them overboard. The LADY'S SURPRISE.

The pole gave a jerk that sent an electric thrill through the frame of the stately Eng-hishwoman.

"Mercy on me!" she cried.
"Nothing wrong I hope?" asked Mr.
Schwab, searching for his smelling salts.
"Flames of Tophet!" exclaimed the actress,
"Tye got a bite already!"

The fire flashed from her massive eyes and her stately person swayed to and from like an oak tree in a cyclone. "What is it?" asked Mr. Gebhard, earnestly.

"O'a, Freddie, go 'way," was her pettish reply. "Don't you see I've made a mash—I mean a catch. Dear me, I'm so excited I hardly know whether I am standing on my hardly know whether I am standing on my head or on my feet."

And Mrs. Langtry began pulling in with as much energy as if she were tugging at the hawser of a firstrate man-of-war. Presently she yanked the dead bluefish ashore, and immediately fell, a senseless mass of beauty, into the motherly arms of Mrs. Roberts. They carried her back to the car, and when Mrs. Roberts and Mr. Schwab had used a quart of night-blooming Cereus over her she rallied.

"Thank you," she said, wearily, "I'm better now. It frightened me, you know, for this was such a large one, and the other was so weak and little."

"Bertha," said she to Mrs. Roberts, yester-lay, "is the Alaska a swift vessel?"
"Yes, my dear."

"Oh, I'm so, so very glad. I yearn so for lear old England."
"Be careful, darling," admonished Mrs. R.,

"those awful reporters at the ventilators will ertainly hear you."

The "Lily" shuddered and drew the cur-ains of her bunk together, but it was too late.

Columns had already gone forth.
"It is an awful blow," said Mr. Schwab yesterday. "If I thought it would keep her here I'd go jump on that ship and sink er."

If the lady must go, I suppose she must," emarked General Hemming, "but it seems wfully sudden."

Business at the Cafe Brunswick and Delnonico's has not been up to the standard ince the news of Mrs. Langtry's intended departure has become public property.
"What's the matter?" was asked of the Brunswick head waiter,

"Mon Dieu!" exclaimed the man, it was "Ze gareon, mousiours, don' vas aple to eating somedinks for ze las week. Zay come in ze cafe and leafe zair ordairs, but ven ze viands vere place before zem zay vas turn seek nside zair stoomacks und ze grand viands vas all vasted. It is certainly the case that the youth of upper Fifth avenue are not what they were. Their gait, so recently the pride of the metropolis, has lost its attractiveness. They "slomp" along in a tired, listless way, with one foot on a deorstep and the other in the gutter. Their bangs, once so beautiful hang around their ears in slovenly shape, and their shirt collars look as though they had been trampled on. It is as much as any of them can do to speak, It is as much as any of them can do to speak and when they do speak it is next to impossi ble to tell what they say.

Altogether the outlook is anything but cheerful, and unless something is speedily done to cheer up the heartbroken dudes they will fall to pieces before the week is out. A MYSTERIOUS STRANGER.

The latest rumor afloat is that Mr. Freddie Gebhard has sold his running horse Fole to the Dwyer brothers, and has intrusted his brokers to convert $47,000 of his money into brokers to convert $41,000 of his money into English sovereigns. It is further said that his valet has been busily employed of late removing small articles of baggage from the Fifth avenue residence to the steamship Alaska. The all absorbing question at the clubs is "will he go with her?"

"He dare not!" exclaimed Mr. Hubert Chambort vesteday.

"He dare not!" exclaimed Mr. Hubert Chambort, yesterday.
"But he will, and you may bet all you are worth upon it," said his friend.

A report which could not be traced to any reliable source, but which found many believers, said that Mr. Langtry was now in New York city, and that he was patiently awaiting the writing of the realers. New York city, and that he was patiently awaiting the arrival of that parlor car. There is no doubt of this much—that a gloomy looking man, wearing a bad hat and wrapped in a faded cloak of English pattern, has been observed hanging around the corridors of the Fitth Avenue hotel for some days, and many are of the opinion that it's Mr. Langtry. What he carries under the cloak is the mystery. Some think it a shotgun, others say it's a box of dynamite. The man drinks deep draughts of English ale at intervals of fifteen minutes and keeps his weather eye in the direction of the Grand Central depot. There is going to be music over this matter

The man with the bad hat is evidently of this opinion for his conduct yesterday was unusually nervous, and his demands for "more h'ale" alarmingly frequent.

THE COTTON WORM. Its Unquestionable Presence in Damaging Numbers in

From the Selma Times.

For a week past reports have been comin into the city of the appearance of the cotten caterpillar at various localities in this section. Numbers of orders for poison have been re-ceived, but they have generally been under-stood to be from farmers who anticipated rouble and were acting with due precaution Farmers who have visited the city have generally been skeptical on the probability of damage to the crop, and have said that they heard more of worms in town than in the Country.

But yesterday the reports became more positive and alarming. Many orders came in rom various directions for poison and for poisoning appliances. Early in the forenoon of George O. Baker, the most successful and alert farmer in this vicinity if not in the state, was interviewed on the worm question. He emphatically announced that unless favored with dry weather his efforts at poisoning would fail and his cotton would be detroved within ten days. A second coat of stroyed within ten days. A second country paris green was being applied tyesterday to the most threatening portions of his crop, the first having been put on only last Friday.
This advanced condition of affairs was alarming indeed, and, therefore, in the afternoon we drove out to his plantation and made an xamination. The discoveries made there more than just tified his statements and disclosed an omi nous situation. The peculiar odor always ac-companying the operations of the worms was very noticeable and the frazzled condition of the upper part of the acres of the cotton as een in the light of the declining sun was readily perceived. Getting out of the buggy in company with Mr. James W. Moore, himself a prac-ical farmer, a careful examination of parts of everal rows were made. Without the least exaggeration scores of the caterpillars were und on each stalk, and dezens of top leaves ound in a riddled condition. Stalks with a found in a radiced condition. States with a half dozen worms webbed up-were the rule rather than the exception. A fresh coat of poison had evidently just been applied, and many dead and dying worms could be seen. This state of affairs was observed over acres of what is to the eye as fine an appearing crop as can be seen in the state. But a closer exception of the state of the seen in the state. as can be seen in the state. But a closer ex mination reveals another and most unfavor able feature of the crop's condition. Safter stalk was bent over and scrutinized. not a single instance was there over three olls, from one-half to two-thirds grown, on a talk, while usually there was only one. The trought too, has stopped the growth of he plant, and the blooms are almost altoyether on the very top of it. It is badly wilted and there is marked shedding going on. Altogether the situation is very gloomy, and we do not think we have exaggerated the picture in the least. To summarize, the crop is three weeks later than last year, a drought has stopped its growth, the caterpillar is presnt in alarming numbers two weeks earlier han formerly.

As is well known. Mr. Baker has always succeeded in cotton raising, having never lost a crop by the ravages of the catterpillar. He as always succeeded in poisoning profitably, aving his crops when those in fields adjoin-ng were ruined. Last year he made 165 bales on 155 acres of land that ten years ago was almost a sand desert which produced not one bale to ten acres. His yield was larger than Furman's, of Georgia, his fertilizer ac-count was smaller and his profit greater. His plan of poisoning, therefore, should re-ceive due weight, and though we have given t for two seasons past we now repeat it coping that it may assist some few farmers at ast in undertaking to save their prospective otton crops. Poisoning can be successfully arried on at a profit, and we hope the con-iction of this truth will be so forcible that it will be generally prosecuted at once upon the reading of this article by every farmer in the black belt.

The poison used on the Baker farm is made by the following recipe: To one barrel of the commonest flour add ten pounds of pure paris reen, ten pounds of dextrine and ten pounds f powdered rosin. These ingredients must e carefully and thoroughly cleared of lumps and mixed perfectly. It should be done under a shelter at the house before taking to the field. Mr. Baker uses no liquid but sifts the above powder dry upon the very top of the cotton through tin vessels with perforated bottoms. He does not deem it essential to get the material over the whole stalk, but merely upon the tender leaves of the top and at the end of the limbs of the plant. On these cortions altogether appear the earlier crops of the pest, the killing of which alone can ave the cotton.

The cost of this mixture is as follows The cost of this mixture is as follows: Worm flour per barrel $3.50, Paris green per yound 25 cents, dextrine per pound 15 cents, tosin per barrel $3. The above recipe makes about a barrel and a half of poison, which at the above figures, costs about $6. On the above floures, costs about $6. On the above floures, costs about $6. On the above floures, costs about $6. On the above floures costs about $6. On the above floures above floures above floures above floures above for the country the barrel and a half will go over at least four acres, putting as above detailed on the top of the cotton it as above detailed on the top of the cotton. He used 55 barrels altogether last year on his 165 acres, and poisoned some portions twice. That amount of poison cost about $330, and the expense of labor in application did not swell the outlay to over $500. He is sure that it added 25 per cent to his yield, for his cotton made on until frost, while that in neighboring fields was riddled six weeks before-

It is not absurd in the light of such an experience to ask if poisoning pays? Unques ionably it does pay, and if it is not practiced in this section, with its backward, embryonic crop this year, there will be the shortest yield known in years. A good corn harvest is almost assured, and if the cotton is saved to pay the comparatively light debts of the country, our future prosperity will be an ab olute certainty. Our people's present fate is practically in their own hands. Will they work it out as they can?

The Folly of Follies.

Many persons are accustomed to disregard all slight symptoms of disease, saying, "Let it go as it came." But when one feels the symptoms of Kidney Disease—such as pain in the back and loins, palpitation, urinary derangement, etc.—to neglect them is the folly of follies. Kidney, bladder, liver and urinary complaints are always liable to end fatally if neglected. The true cure for them is thunt's Remedy, the great kidney and liver medicine. House bills of the first reading were called, and having been disposed of, the senate, on motion, took a recess until 11:45, at which time it met again and heard the reading o the report of the committee on the life, services and death of the late Hon. Charles J. Jenkins. This report was submitted by the chairman of the senate committee, Mr. Lamar, and was as follows:

"Whereas, it is most seemly that this commonwealth, mindful of the long and exalted services of the Hofforable Charles J. Jenkins, and proud of the grand record he has bequeathed, should give pub, lic expression to her estimate of his noble life and thought, heroic in act, patriotic in purpose, and loyal in devotion.

Resolved, That as legislator, judge and chief magistrate, his every deed won for him the confidence, respect and love of his fellow-citizens.

Resolved, That his conduct, while governor of this commonwealth at an abnormal epoch, in sustaining the public credit, in restoring law, order and hope to a distracted community, in maintaining the rights and dignity of the state, and in preserving the public treasure and the executive seal from the grasp of the usurper, challenges and will ever receive our profound admiration.

In offering the resolutions Mr. Calvin said:

Mr. Speaker: Under an order of exercises different from that which the joint committee recommended, and which this house adopted, I would have esteemed it a great privilege to have united with my honorable conferees of the senate and house in paying an individual tribute to the memory of the illustrious citizen whose virtues we are is day to commemorate.

From my earliest recollection, I have looked up and revered the name of Mr. Jenkins; because his wondrous moral courage and the great puriother; its of his life.

of his wondrous moral courage and the great purity of his life.

I remember that he early elected retirement from public office in preference to the sacrifice of his convictions as to duty and state policy.

I recall his overwhelming defeat on the great issue of secession and co operation. In that particular convention, Mr. Speaker, I recall the time when, after four years of war, the foundations of society were broken up as seemingly, on another memorable occasion, had been the foundations of the great deep; when the clouds were lowering: when no hand was outstretched to save but the unperceived hand of the Almighty; when no voice uttered a word of cheer except the unfaltering voice of woman. I recall the fact to-day, Mr. Speaker, that, in that great emergency, the people turned, as by inspiration and as one man, to Charles J. Jenkins as the person safest to trust and best fitted to lead.

The order of exercises, Mr. Speaker, may be without precedent and may constitute a new departure. So be it, Who, may I inquire, has forgotten that, a few years ago, from among the then living sons who had illustrated her our the field of battle and in the forum, the great state of Georgia singled out Charles J. Jenkins that she might confer on him a high and distinguished honorby presenting to him, through the then speaker of the house of representatives—the eminent gentleman, (Hon. Joseph B. Cumming), who sits on my left, a fac simile to the great scal of the state, thus recognizing, honoring and commending his courage and his faithfulness.

I felt, Mr. Speaker, that it was my duty thus hurriedly and briefly to indicate the reasons which its faithfulness.

I felt, Mr. Speaker, that it was my duty thus the first and briefly to indicate the reasons which induced the committee to recommend the order that has been adopted for this hour. Having done this, it only remains for me to say, as I do now, that the work or the committee is in the possession The resolutions were unanimously adopt-

At 12 o'clock the senate entered the hall of the house, and President Boynton of the sen-ate presided over the joint session. The resoution authorizing the joint session was read enator Lamar then addressed the president and said:

It was a felicitous conception of the committee appointed to arrange for fitting services in honor of the late ex-governor and ex-supreme court justice. Charles J. Jenkins, to call into the grateful duty the citizens of Georgia most highly qualified to portray the fitustrious deceased.

The theme is a noble one, the occasion will be historic. The auditory is the representative council of the people with the imposing back-ground of the popular sentiment of a great common wealth, mourning over the loss of a cherished son.

I have the pleasure of introducing to you the selected orator of this memorial service, Colonel Charles C. Jones, Jr., of Augusta, not only the bosom friend of the lamented dead and the loving and critical student of his life, but himself a distinguish ed son and citizen of the state, lawyer, philauthropist and historian.

Colonel Jones was greeted with applause as Colonel Jones was greeted with applause as he arose. His masterly effort occupied about one hour and a half in its delivery, but throughout held the closest attention of the general assembly. He gave a full outline of the life and career of Governor Jenkins, and related some most interesting incidents of the most trying period of his life, which he had heard from the great Georgian's own lins. He heard from the great Georgian's own lips. He was born in Beaufort district, South Carolina, in 1805, but came to Georgia when a boy. He attended several famous schools, among others that of Mr. Breman, at schools, among others that of Mr. Breman, at Mount Z.on, in Hancock county. A valuable portion of his training was under Dr. Waddell, and when that distinguished instructor was made president of Franklin college, in 1822, young Jenkins followed him there. He soon left, however, to complete his course at Union college. New York, where in 1824 he graduated third in his class. Just fifty years afterwards he returned to the college to deliver the address before the Phi Beta Kappa fraternity, of which he was a member when a student there. His alma mater had made him a doctor of laws, and he stood before a vast assembly within her walls mater had made him a doctor of laws, and he stood before a vast assembly within her walls crowned with honor and full of years. He began the practice of the law with John McPherson Berrien in Savannah, but when Berrien went to the senate young Jenkins moved to Sandersville, which, with its surrounding country, then offered a fine field for a young lawyer. In 1829 he moved to Augusta. Politics then ran high in Georgia. The Clark and Troup factions were bitterly arrayed against each other. He cast his fortunes with the Troup party. At the very first election for members of the legislature in Richmond county at which he was eligible, he was chosen to the lower house. On Savannah. Referred to special judiciary comrespect and confidence of the people. When quite a young man he became attorney general of the state, an office which he filled with marked ability. He was then defeated twice for the legislature in Richmond county, his whig politics being contrary to the popular current there. He was elected to the legislature in 1840, but two years later was defeated because of his support of the algerine law. This law was merely an act creating a board of finance for Richmond county to be elected by voters only of property holders. the sale of whisky in Campbell county when a majority of the voters of said county shall so order. without a quorum he alone remained in his eat and characterized their withdrawal as revolutionary. He was among the foremost supporters of the plan to build the State road. In 1850 the question of disunion was warmly discussed in Georgia, and he represented the union sentiment. He was the author of the celebrated Georgia platfosm of that year. In 1851 he was urged by many prominent friends to be a candidate for the United States senate, but would not do so because his old friend Berrien persisted in remaining in the race, though he had no chance for re-election. E. Y. Hill and Hines Holt, who were in Milledgeville pressing their claims for the office, went to Jenkins and offered to withdraw in his behalf, but he declined to enter the race as long as Berrien remainded in it. The next day came a letter from Berrien withdrawing mbs was elected his successor, but there good reason to believe that Toombs would no have allowed his name to be used agains Jenkins had the latter not finally decline at the Hill-Holt conference. In 1850 he de-clined the office of secretary of the interior tendered him by President Fillmore because of important legal engagements. In 1853 he ran against Herschel V. Johnson for governor, and after a spirited but dignified canvass was defeated by only a few votes. He remained a whig until that party aligned itself with the abolitionists. In 1860 he was appointed a justice of the su-preme court in place of Linton Stephens, re-signed, and remained on the bench during the entire war. The court had, during that period, to decide some very grave questions and his services were so conspicuously usefu on it that President Davis declined appoint osition a cabinet where he wanted him is services were so much needed in While still on the supreme bench Georgia. he was elected governor. The stormy period of the Jenkins administration, his discussions with General Pope and General Meade, his ef-forts to obtain from the supreme court of the United States an injunction against the reconstruction measures, the partisan rulings of the court and the arbitrary usurpations of the military power were all portrayed in the most vivid manner. The speaker related in glowing terms how Governor Jenkins, when the saw that all resistance was useless, saved the treasure and executive seal of the state, which he afterwards thanked God had never been polluted by the hand of the usurper or the upstart pretender, and which he deliv-ered to Governor Smith as his first legitimate successor. On motion of Major Cummings, the legislature ordered a gold fac simile of the seal he had saved made for him, and it was appropriately presented by Governor Smith.

Smith.

In summing up the character of Governor Jenkins, the speaker declared that he would stand in the nistory of Georgia side by side with the great George of Georgia side by side with the great George M. Troup. Georgia is fast losing her great men. In a few months she has been bereft of Herschel V. Johnson, Benjamin H. Hill, Alexander H. Stephens, and yet the grass is not green above the grave of Charles J. Jerkins, who many Georgians consider the noblest Roman of them all. His beautiful noblest Roman of them all. His beautiful character, bis greatness as an orator, statesman and lawyer, the declining years of his life after serving the state in the constitutional convention, spent in dignified repose were eloquently set forth and in conclusion the speaker said "when the earthly house grew dark, the lamp which had illumined it, trimmed anew by angel hands was placed among the stars of Heaven." REPORTS from many points of western Geor gia and Alabama report the presence of the caterpillar in large numbers. In Sumter, Houston and adjoining counties the damage seems to be particularly great.

Some curious stories are told of the unfinished messages as they read when the striking operators left their seats. One in New York read: "Aunt has just died. In her will you are left," And here the dazed relative had to stay until the manager took the key and finished the sentence.

THE cholera has undoubtedly found a lodgment in London, whither it found its way on an English trading vessel. The action of the state department in instituting an inspection on the other side of the Atlantic will be approved. The inspection should be thorough and vigorous.

HANCOCK county is developing a social sensation. A crooked citizen, under cover of a letter of recommendation from the clerk of the court, won a South Carolina bride. To write another letter, quietly followed by a third, all of which leaves matters in a mixed condition

THE situation of the Western Union telegraph company is growing desperate. Despite the reports to the contrary, there is great delay in the transmission of messages such as to render them valueless. Matters of state-even are filed subject to delay, notwithstanding the obligation of the company to fulfill its mission.

JUDGE M. J. CRANFORD.

The death of Judge Crawford, reported in our columns elsewhere, emphasizes the reflection that the great men who were foremost in Georgia in the days that preceded the war, are rapidly passing away. In the last few months our people have been called on to mourn Johnson, Hill and Stephens-and even while the memorial of the late Governor Jenkins was being spoken in the capitol the soul of Judge Crawford was leaving its earthly tenement and winging its way into the infi

Worthy of these great men, with whom he served in life, with whom he is honored in death, was Judge Crawford. Of scrupulous integrity, of commanding ability, and high, sonled in all things, he was fit companion of these men who lived without fear and died without reproach. He was of essentially fine fibre, and literally incapable of low or sordid conduct. It was his peculiarly sensitive na ture that held him aloof from the rough con tentions of the political arena for the greater part of his life, but there has not been a day in a quarter of a century when this reserved and quiet gentleman was not a strong force in Georgia. To his honor be it said that he nev er through fear or favor or ambition, wanton ly misused this power or made it subservient to demagogery.

All in all, he was a clean, decorous gentle man, honorable in all things because he loved honor, and despised that which had the sus picion of dishonor. Other Georgians have borne a larger part in current affairs, other have been more robust and insistent and strenuous, but no Georgian has lived a clearer or more consistent, life, no one as been truer to his people, to his convictions and his country, and no one has left in the hearts of Georgians a monument of chaster and purer white, than the great Georgian whose death we are called on to mourn to-day.

"THE NEW FISHY POLICY."

Mr. Wharton Barker, in his esteemed Phil adelphian hebdomadal, The American, reviews the argument in favor of what he calls "The New Fiscal Policy." This name is rather too indefinite to suit the character o the esteemed Barker's propositon. With his consent, therefore, we shall allude to it as the Wishy Policy. The forces which Mr. Barke has been able to muster in behalf of his plan of high taxation and surplus distribution have been materially strengthened so far as the humorous features of the affair are conserned by the addition of the New York Tribune.

The new Fishy Policy, of which the esteemed Barker is the editor and proprietor. contemplates a continuation of the presen outrageous system of high taxation and subsidies to the monopolies, and the return of the large surplus, which necessarily accumulates under that system, to the states. Set ting forth this fact as agreeably as possible, the editor of the Tribune is led to exclaim: "One would like to know, after all, what should be done with such a surplus as is contemplated, if it should not be turned over to the states. Observe the perfect ingenuity of this logicthe liquid and pervasive character of the humor. Not two, or ten, or twenty or a thousand would like to know, "after all what should be done with such a surplus as is contemplated," but "one" would like to know Under the peculiar-we had almost said the mysterious-circumstances of the case it is to is the editor of the Tribune, or the gifted Wharton Barker, but this is a matter of very little importance. Besides, it is to some extent personal, and, in a really and truly metropolitan controversy everything that is personal is confined to the first column on the first page of the esteemed Herald.

The humor of the Tribune, however, is important. It is light, but positive: it is the result of a remarkably gifted imagination. To paraphrase the sentence we have quoted is to give our readers the full benefit of this limpid form of republican humor. High taxes must continue, and a surplus will naturally ccumulate. "One '-whoever that may be -"would like to know what should be done with such a surplus if it should not be turned over to the states." This would seem to settle the whole matter, but evidently it doesn't, for the Tribune proceeds to add a clincher. "Will the opponents" of this proposition 'seriously propose that the United States' shall spend, with or without good reason or a proper object, all' the money that comes into the treasury?

This humor is not only limpid, it is oily-it has all the characteristics of hog's fat stewed in a Chicago kerosene vat. The Tribune not only indorses the esteemed Barker's wild-cat proposition, but he puts everybody else on the defensive. But in assuming that there is to be a surplus, the Tribune is too sanguine by half. If the surplus is to continue to accumulate in the treasury year after year, the wild-cat scheme is about as reasonable as any other. If the people are to continue to submit to a system of tax spoliation which gives two-thirds to a treasury that dosen't need it, and one-third to a grasping gang of monopo lists that has already outgrown the laws and institutions of the country, there is very little to be said against the new Fishy Policy of the Pennsylvania schemers. But this is the very point. Why deal with Mr. Wharton Barker's visionary schemes, or with the Tribune's limpid logic and oily humor about the distribution of a surplus. Why should there be an extraordinary surolus? Why should not our present outrageous system of taxation be revised and reformed so that the great part of the surplus that threatens to accumulate in the treasury shall be allowed to remain where it belongsn the pockets of the people? To take it out innecessarily, as is now done, is robbery; to continue the system after all its bad features become apparent is worse than robbery. Mr. Wharton Barker's sop to the states, although it has been indorsed by the republican party of Pennsylvaniathe agent of the protection monopolists-is suppress unpleasant rumors he got the clerk not calculated to accomplish the ends aimed at. The fraud is on the surface. The whole scheme is transparent. Continue to rob the individual taxpayer in order that the Pennsylvania monopolies may wax fat and flourish; if there is any sign of impatience, let the surplus be turned over to the states. This is the scheme, and a very pretty one it is. It shows that those who are in fa vor of robbing the people are becoming desperate.

There is nothing simpler and plainer than the duties of the government, unless it is the principle of honesty. The government has no right to tax a citizen, or any number of itizens, above its needs. The government nas no right to tax one individual for the benefit of another individual, or a class of individuals. The government has no right to rob the people and then treat the result as a "surplus." Let taxes be reduced to the point where there will be no extraordinary surplus in the treasury. If the states are to bene fit from any tax, let the states raise it.

As has been said already, the new Pennsylrania Fishy Policy deceives no one-least of all the men who have sanctioned it. That the republican party will make it an issue in 1884, we have not a doubt. That they could be run out of the country on such a platform s quite probable. But there is one thing in the way. When the democratic house meets, called upon to place Mr. Randall in the speaker's chair, and as he is known to be n active sympathy with every project calcu lated to advance the interests of Pennsylvania onopolists, Mr. Wharton Barker may well claim in advance that the democratic party will indorse his schemes of fraud.

The courts have decided that the railroad corpo ations shall perform the duties laid down by law a whatever cost-that is to say, freight shall be car e same decision would apply to the business of a legraph company. If so, the strike of the Weste nion operators is a much more important affair an the company has been led to suspect. At the ame time, it should be borne in mind that the chief medy of the business public is to put its money n another line.

THREE southern democratic congressmen hav ous far announced that they will vote for Randal or speaker-two in South Carolina and one i orgia. We have no doubt there are others in oth states, for a great many southern democrati ongressmen may generally be depended upon to it down upon the prospects of the democrati onal convention to be held in the Quaker city. the brethren might meet in the poorhouse, the root which was stolen by Phipps. WATERMELONS are now cheap in the markets o ne country. Very well. Cheapness is one way o educating the palates of the people of the north and west. By next season the taste for Georgia water west. By next seemed melons will be an epidemic. FDITOR DANA announces that he is not on speaking terms with Conkling. This shows that Mr. Conk-ling is sadly in the wrong somewhere. Editor Dana nakes it a point to be on speaking terms with all ruly good persons.

INGERSOLL consoles himself that he has made a nuch money out of the star-route business as the original spoliators, so to speak. Editor Dana's Colonel" Bliss consoles himself with the same neral reflection.

Major Wasson, of the army, who has been see tenced to jail for enbezzlement, bore up bravely until the time came to shave off his elegant blond nustache. Then the major shed copious tears.

EDITOR DANA continues to insist that it is non nse to allude to Mr. Tilden as a probable candiiate. Well-well-a little nonsense now and then s relished by the wisest men.

It is now stated that Garfield discovered that Dor y had a screw loose in his moral make-up. In ther words, Garfield discovered that Dorsey was very bright republican.

THE stalwarts evidently believe that they hav thing to lose by fanning the controversy between the dead Garfield and the worse than dead Dorsey.

Now that the Tribune is tooting Arthur's horn, Editor Gorham ought to concede that there is prac impossible to say whether the "one" referred tical harmony in the republican gang.

DEATH OF JUDGE CRAWFORD. The Life and Service of the Deceased Statesman and Jurist.

pecial to The Constitution. COLUMBUS, Ga., July 23,-At six thirty-fiv 'clock yesterday evening, Judge Martin J. Craword died at the residence of Mr. A. G. Redd, on Rose Hill near the city. He was brought back rom Chipley on Saturday evening, his physician having decided that he had made no improvement luring his stay there. Ever feeble in health, the labors of the supreme bench have steadily sapped is strength till at the close of the last term, on his eturn home he fell an easy victim of yphoid fever. His mind remained unimpaired o the last. The last rays of the Sabbath's sun fell athwart the dying couch of one of the purest me that ever graced public life in Georgia. lay in state at the residence of Hon. B H. Crawford o-day, wherein it was viewed by our sorrowing citiens. A meeting of the bar, Judge Willis presiding was held this evening, at which suitable resolutions were adopted. The funeral takes place from the First Baptist church, Dr. J. H. Devote conducting the services, at nine o'clock this morning. The nayor has issued a proclamation requesting the business houses to close from nine to ten, which will be generally complied with.

Martin J. Crawford was the son of Mr. Hardy

crawford, a farmer of Pike county and was borne at Zebulon in 1820. When he was about ten year of age his father moved to Hamilton, Harris county, where the son was sent to school. When abo sixteen, he went to Mercer University buf did not graduate, remaining year. He returned to Hamilton with Hamilton Baldwin. When only 19 years of age he was by special act the legislature admitted to the bar and immediately began a successful practice. When only 21 ne was elected to the legislature from Harris coun ty and, though the youngest man in the body, serv ed with distinction. In 1845 he moved to Columbus where he continued the practice of profession. In 1854 he was appointed by Governor Herschel V. Johnson to fill an unexpired term on the bench of the Chattahoo chee circuit. He had been an ardent democrat since his manhood began and in 1855 his services to that party were rewarded by an election to congress from the fomous old second Georgia district. His opponent was Judge Willis Hawkins. Both were oung men of rare ability and each had an enthusstic following. The campaign was exciting and developed the best strength of the well-matched hampions. In 1857 Judge Crawford was re-elected congress and two years later rable record in Washington secured for him a third election. Like most of the lead ers of is party he was in favor of est of the Georgia delegation he resigned his seat congress, and returning to Georgia, advocated ner severance from the union, with all his power He was elected a member of the provisional con gress of the confederate states, which assembled at Montgomery, and he served in congress a short while after the seat of the new government wa cansferred to Richmond. He left the civil service to take an active part in the field, and raising avalry regiment tendered it to the confederacy He and his entire command was overpowered and captured in Kentucky. They were not long in the hands of the enemy before terms of exchange were arranged. Colonel Crawford reorganized his regi ment and again entered the service. He serve with credit during the remainder of the struggle After the war he resumed his law practice in Columbus and was a conspicuousl figure at that famously able bar. In Governor Smith appointed him to udge of the Chattahoochee circuit, vice Judge James Johnson, resigned. In 1877 Governor Coluitt appointed him an associate justice of the su eme court to fill a vacancy. Subsequently he as elected to the full term which he was serving out when he died. He was twice married. His firs rife, whom he wedded when only about 18 years old, was a daughter of Mr. Osborne Cook, of Ham ilton, and a sister of Mrs. D. P. Hill Atlanta. She lived only a year after her marriage and died childless. His second wife, who survives him, was Miss manda Reese, sister of Judge Augustu Madison. Of their union there were four children one daughter now deceased, and three sons. The ldest of these is Captain Reese Crawford, formerly

THE UNIVERSITY AND THE BRANCH COL LEGES.

The friends of the State university and of the oranch colleges under charge of the uniersity have gone to work in earnest o lay before the legislature the merit of their cause and the absolute necessity of something being done. They are very much pleased at the eception with which their arguments are met, and claim that both houses are very favorably inclined to take hold of the matter.

Professor Harry White, of the university, went fore the finance committee yesterday aftern on, at the request of Chairman Little, who is hear ly nterested, and made a short talk that impressed e committee very favorably. He will go before he educational committee to-day, and to-night will ddress the joint agricultural committee and such nembers of the two houses as care to attend. At ooth of these sessions he will, of course, discuss the nancial needs of the university, the work it is dong, the importance of branch colleges and the nessity of meeting their wants with an appropria-ion, through the university trustees. It is not designed to bring the bill forward huriedly, but rather to have it fully discussed and each member made thoroughly conversant with its merits before he is called on to vote on it.

How to Drive Files Out of a Room,

Observations made by M. Rafford, a member of the Society d'Horticulture at Limoges, show that a stor oil plant having been placed in a room in fested with flies, they disappeared as by enchant nent. Wishing to find the cause, he soon found under the castor oil plant a number of dead flies, and a large number of bodies had remained elinging to the under surface of the leaves. It would therefore appear that the leaves of the caster-oil plant give out an essential oil, or some toxic principle which possesses very strong insecticide qualities. Castor-oil plants are in France very much used as ornemental plants in rooms, as they resist very well variations of atmosphere and temperature. As the castor-oil plant is very much grown and cultivated in all gardens, the Journal d'Agriculture points out that it would be worth while to try decoctions of the leaves to destroy the green flies and other insects which in summer are so destructive to plants and fruit trees. Anyhow d. Rafford's observations merit that trial should be made of the properties of the castor-oil plant both for the destruction of flies in dwelling and of other troublesome insects. the under surface clinging to Profit in Melons. Mr. G. S. Roach has received returns of another netted him $255 83. He has shipped in all, off of about twenty acres, seven carloads, and expects to ship two more. He thinks that his entire shipments will net him about $2,000, which is not a bad show for twenty acres of poor, pine land. If $100 profit ## per acre will not induce immigration, what will it take to induce them to settle in southern Georgia, where such results can be obtained from so little labor and expense?

Shipment of Pears, Up to Thursday night 689 crates of LeConte pears had passed through the Thomasville express office Much the larger portion of these found their way to northern and western markets. Prices remain very northern and western markets. Prices remain very nearly unchanged—selling here at $2 per crate and abroad from $2.50 to $5.25. This is a good showing for this industry. At 25 cents net profit per bushel an acre would yield an annual income of at lesst $150 and require less labor in cultivation and harvesting than any production of the soil that we know of. The LeCon'e not only holds its own, but is growing in popularity. Its fature looks bright.

Propagating Melons.

From the Dublin Gazett Mr. Jerry Lee comes to the front and tells us how o raise large watermelons. He says he selected one of ordinary size from those in his patch, and not far from the stem, inserted a string, common yarn, some time and the melon grew amezingly and began to assume gigantic proportions. But one morning he paid the usual visit for the purpose of replenishing the fluid, when, to his surprise, he found the melon had grown so large that it bursted wide open, and the beautiful red melon hay before him. He states that the flavor was delic ous, and thinks it the plan to raise large watermelons, provided you can bind or confine them to prevent bursting. The fruitcan be flavored with any flavoring to suit by the process of propagation.

Truck Farming in the South.
From the New Orleans Times-Democrat, The farmers of Georgia and of other southern tates, are divided just now on the question whether truck-farming pays or not. There is a wide ifference of opinion among them on this point, and it is important to have it settled which is right, as many southern farmers have gone into the busi-ness of raising vegetables, fruit and other garden ruck, while others are preparing to embark in the ousiness.

A few years ago, when truck farming was first iried, it was predicted that it would prove an unsold blessing to the south. Fabulous stories were old of the yield of crops to the acre, and of the wooderful increase in value of land that had been nitherto worthless for any purpose. Most of these ories were wholly extravagant, and it is to this ex-avagance and exaggeration that we owe the pres-nt sentiment of depression among some of the uckmen. They have been expecting to make 00 and $200 an acre, and being disappointed in ese wild dreams, they pronounce truck farming failure.

That the first persons who went into this business should have made large, almost fabulous sums is only natural. When, however, more entered it, and it became a regularly established bus ness, the prof-lis naturally decreased from competition, but still remained respectable. Truck farming in the south was probably never in better condition than it is just now. The farmers have everything in their favor. The railroads have been more than friendly to them, have put on cars suitable for this trade, and have expedited their trains so as to land this perishable freight in the markets at as early a time as possible. The markets certainly continue as good as ever, and the supply as yet does not equal the demand.

good as ever, and the supply as yet does not equal he demand.
It would be astonishing, with all these advantages, to learn that the raising of early vegetables and ruit for the northern and western markets was not profitable industry. Butil is THE ATLANTA CONTITUTION, which hes thoroughly examined and inrestigated the subject, shows exactly how much his new industry has benefited and enriched Georgia. The melon crop of that state alone is worth more han a million doilars, and the yield of vegetables and fruits of all kinds has increased four food in the ast three years. In southern Georgia, in the countes developed to the raising of early vegetables, real state has increased from fifty to one hundred per tent in value; large investments have been made in these lands by northern and western men, and he number of acres under cultivation has increased muncily.

That some farmers have failed in this business, as they would have failed in any other, and that occasionally drouth and unfavorable weather has cut off much of the profit, cannot be denied; but the cry started by the Macoa Messenger, and taken up by some other Georgia journals, that truck farming in the south is "au expleded humbug" does not seen, upon investigation, to be warranted or sustained by facts.

The Rome and Decatur.

From the Gainesville Eagle,
The proposed Rome and Decatur railroad will be ost exactly an air line about 100 miles long-About half way between Rome and Decatur, Ala., About half way between Rome and Decatur, Ala., its terminal point, it crosses the Alabama creat Southern at Collinsville. When the line is completed to Decatur it is proposed to build an air line from Rome to Galuewille, connecting the Richmond and Danville with the Alabama Great Southern at Collinsville, and with the East Tennessee. Virginia and Georgia at Decatur. This makes alink completing a new Atlantic and Factife line either by way of New Orleans to the Southern Pacific, or by St. Louis to the Union Pacific.

The East and West Road.

Rome, Ga., July 23.—Your correspondent has just returned from a trip over the East and West rail-The track has been laid eight miles beyond the bridge over the Coosa river and the construction train makes daily runs from the point where this road crosses the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia to the Ragland mines in St. Clair county, where there is a large force of miners at work getting out coal. These mines are under the management of a brother of Senator John T. Morgan, and it is now stated that one thousand tons of coal will be taken out daily as soon as the mines are fully opened.

Although trains now cross the bridge, vet it is not finished, as a draw has to be put in so that steamboats can pass. The road will be completed to Brooken Arrow, eight miles beyond Ragland mines by the middle of August, and then the grading of that part of the line lying between Cross Plains and Cedarcown will be begun. Captain John Postell, the able manager of this road, who by his fair dealings has made everybody along the road its friends, says he will push on to Birmingham just as soon as the gap to Cedartown is finished. the bridge over the Coosa river and the construction of a Church for Colored People.

New YORK, July 23.—The Rev. Thomas
Farrell, who was pastor of St. Joseph's Roman Catholic church in Waverly place, in his wil dated November 23, 1875, which was filed in the surrogate's office July 25, 1885, five days after his death, left $5,000 in eight per cent Alabama bonds for the purpose of aiding in the erection of a Catholic church for colored people in this city. According to the terms of the will, if the money was not used for this purpose within three years after the priest's of the will, if the money was not used for this purpose within three years after the priest's death it was to be handed over to the asylum for colored children in One Hundred one Forty-third street. To-day the three years expired, and no steps have been taken toward the erection of a colored Catholic church. In a few days the orphan asylum trustees will apply to Surrogate Rollins for an order directing the executors to transfer the money to the treasurer of Rollins for an order directing the executors to transfer the money to the treasurer of the institution. One of the executods said to-night that the money would not be given to the asylum unless it was ordered by the courts. The colored church had not been built, it was stated, because there had been no strong demand for such a church, nor had others offered to add to the sum left by Father Farrell. In his old church there was a number of colored worshipers, and the color line ber of colored worshipers, and the color line had not been strictly drawn.

25 C. C. & A...... 28 NEW YORK, July 23 .- Stocks heavy and lower throughout the day. The support which has been accorded the market ever since the strike of the tel egraphers was officially announced was with drawn, except for Western Union, which was comparatively firm at 8014, 791% and 7978. In the early dealings the Vanderbilts were weak and depressed, declining % to 1½ per cent; but later on the bears attacked the Gould shares vigorously, forcing them down 34 to 23% per cent, Wabash preferred and Missouri Pacific suffering most. Denver and Rio Grande was also heavy, fall ng off 25% per cent to 381/2. Outside the active shares mentioned, prices were ½ to 1½ per cent lower. The fact that the trouble between the Western Union company and the Brotherhood of Telegraphers had not been adjusted had an unfavorable influence on the market, retarding business and caus ing an unsettled feeling among stock operators Compared with Saturday's closing, prices are 1/4 to 2% per cent lower. In specialties, Manitoba broke from 107% to 104%, and rallied to 105; Canadian Pacific declined 13% to 581/2; Minneapolis and St. Louis 2 to 23; Oregon and Transcontinental 1% to 76¼; West Point Terminal 2¾ to 31¾, and Colorado Coal 1 to 27. American Cable rose 1½ to 67½, and Richmond and Danville 2 to 72. New York Central lent at 1-16 per cent, New Jersey Central flat, and the other active stocks 1 to 2 for carrying. Transac-

SWIFTS' SPECIFIC

Is not a triumph of science, but is a reve-lation through the instinct of the untutored savage, and is a complete antidote to all kinds of Blood Poison and Skin Rumor.

Swift's Specific has cured me of Scrofnla, which is hereditary in my family. I have suffered with it for many years, and have tried a great many physicians and all sorts of treatment, but to no purpose; and when I began to take Swift's Specific I was in a horrible condition, but thanks to this great remedy. I am rid of the disease. There is no doubt that it is the greatest medlelne in existence, and I hope any who doubt will write to me.

E. C. HAWES, Jr., Clarksville, Ga.

After suffering twenty-five years with a painful Dry Tetter, and trying many physicians. I was at last relieved by the use of Swift's Specific, and I cheerfully commend it to all similarly shifted.

PRICE LIST AND CATALOGUE.

This cut represents my IMPROVED COTTON CONDENSER, patented September 17, 1878, and re-issued June 8, 1880. My patent covers a perforated cylinder having closed heads, with a door therein, through which accumulations may be removed from the interior of the cylinder, and a casing arranged above and below at the ends in such a manner as to close the periphery of the cylinder to prevent the escape of dust and lint into the room, also sides and bottom openings, as specified in the patent, and is the only Condenser made that will allow a free action of the gin brush in straightening the staple, thereby making a fine sample, and that removes all dust and foreign matter from the house in which the gin is at work, making a lint room as pleasant as a parlor, and is an absolute safe-guard against fire, thereby saving more than its cost in insurance every season that it is worked. All the leading Gin manufacturers have arranged to manufacture this Condenser in connection with their Gins, under a regular license from me, and will stamp the words "Patented September 17, 1878," on each Condenser so manufactured, and persons using Condensers constructed under proper authority, as above indicated, will be protected, otherwise they will be liable, as well as the person manufacturing and selling the same, from infringement of said patent. I am prepared at short notice to furnish a Condenser of this pattern for any Gin made in America. It is so simple that by simply making the inlet to correspond with the discharge flue of the Gin it will work as well on one Gin as another.

The Institution to Open in Augusta Next OctoberSermon of Dr. Callaway.

Last Sunday morning Rev. Morgan Callaway, D.D., preached to a very large congregation at Trinity church. His theme was a broad one, being the duty of the Christian church to all mankind. While the essence of Christianity, he said, is spiritual, its developments must be actual. This leads from benevolence to charity and beneficience. This proposition was brought great question now is not "what shall we do with him?" but that other broader, more statesman like question, "what shall we do part of the church in the true educa-

The part of the church in the true educa-tion of the messes and its special duty toward the negro was clearly set forth. The aim of the Paine institute is to train young negroes for the ministry and thus furnish the means of enlightening and educating their race. The characteristics of the negro and his capacity were discussed of the negro and his capacity were discussed in a philosophically practical way. The sermon evinced a deep research on a most profound and intricate question. Such study has left in the mind of the distinguished divine left in the mind of the distinguished divine the clear conviction that the church can do a great work in the way proposed and as clear a faith that the church ought to do so. The Paine institute will open in October and Dr. Calloway is to be in charge of it. His heart is in the work, and his cultured intellect is to be sincerely devoted to the cause. The result of the experiment will be watched in refully and prayerfully by those who agree hopefully and prayerfully by those who agree with the doctor as to the duty of the Methodist church in this connection.

Mrs. Dora B. Banta, of New York city, has 'Mrs. Dora B. Banta, of New York city, has served upon her husband, Samuel Banta, notice of proceedings for separation, alleging inhuman treatment and desertion. Her charges, according to the reports in the New York papers, involve Miss May Stembler, the actress and vocalist, who began her career at Ford's grand opera house, in this city. Mr. and Mrs. Banta were married June 18, 1875 and lived together until last May. He is 35 and handsome, and is salesman in a Broadway, New York, wholesalesman in a Broadway, New York, wholesale house. Mrs. Banta is 24, pleasant and pretty. They have one child, a girl, aged 6.
In 1881, the complainant alleges, her husband met Miss Stembler. He afterwards boasted to his wife that he was in love with Miss Stembler and wanted to marry her, and would do so if he could get rid of his wife.
Mr. Banta then advised his wife to commit suicide, if there was no other way out of the difficulty. On Mrs. Banta refusing to thus accommodate the fellow he so treated her that she left him last May. He sent to her afterwards asking her to commence suit for divorce, which suggestion she treated as she had the suicide suggestion. Mrs. Banta had the suicide suggestion. Mrs. Banta claims her husband gets $2,300 a year, and she wants alimony, alleging that while he gave Miss Stembler valuble presents he refused to support her and her child. Recently while Banta was off on his vacation a note was taken to his home, and he not being there, his wife opened it. The note was as

A TERRIBLE CRASH

A Disastrous Rallway Cobision on the Central Ratiroad, Near the Barracks.

"There is a good chance for a collision," said a man yesterday while driving into the city, on Peters, with a representative of The Constitution. There had just passed oppo-site Humphries street crossing a long freight train on the Central railroad, loaded with watermelons, that was flagging a train in the rear. Just as the first train, pulled by the engine Nashville, crossed Humphries street it come uncoupled from the train and ran on some distance, to near the trestle over the some distance, to near the trestle over the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia railroad. The train that had separated from the engine came on at the speed it had when the engine uncoupled, and the engineer had to run his engine out of the way. He had blowed on brakes just as soon as he noticed he had left his train and very soon the breakman stopped the cars, and a man was sent to the rear to stop the following train. Before the man had time to go far the other train was heard coming nearly opposite West End. The curve nearly opposite Colonel Adair's hid the delayed train, and the engineer on the approaching Adair's hid the delayed train, and the engineer on the approaching train did not see the front train until he was close on it. He immediately blew on breaks, close on it. close on it. He immediately blew on breaks, reversed his engine and clinched his teeth for the shock, but he never left his engine. for the shock, but he never left his engine. The wood passer jumped and saved himself, and the fireman who had his little brother with him, gathered up the boy and folded him close in his arms, and the engine, Jonesboro pulling the rear train, plunged into the rear of the front train with a terrible crash. Every man escaped without a scratch. The engine did not explode, but the tender was a complete wreck. The first the tender was a complete wreck. The first car on the rear train was split into kindling wood and three or four other cars were badly damaged, and the watermelons began to leak

The Constitution man soon reached the spot where the wrecked engine was standing. The engineer was quietly picking up the pieces—he was not at all unnerved—was as calm as a May morning. So was the fireman. The latter opened a box that lay on the ground latter opened a box that lay on the ground latter opened as a box that lay on the ground latter opened as box that

The latter opened a box that lay on the ground bottom side up, and pulled out a basket of dinner, in which a bottle of milk was found all right. The basket was sound, but everything around it was in splinters.

The engineer said: "I was not coming fast. I did not see the train in front until I turned the curve, and I saw the man whom they had sent to the rear just as I got sight of the cars in front. If I had had two car lengths more I think I would have struck it very lightly." I think I would have struck it very lightly."

AT HOME AGAIN

THE GATE CITY GUARD BACK FROM THE SEASHORE.

How They Spant the Trip-Their Reception in At-Riegs Occurred—The Shipwreck.

The Gate City Guard have returned. They eached Atlanta yesterday afternoon at 1:40 o'clock, and were received at the union, par senger depot by a large concourse of friends and admirers, both civic and military. Their coming vesterday had been expected since Saturday, and the intelligence of the "ship-wreck" and the wounding of Private Frank Ridge, which was disseminated through the aid of Sunday's Construction, had the effect of drawing a large crowd to the depot yes-terday. As the train rolled into the depot the Atlanta cornet band began playing "Home, Sweet Home," and when the train came to a halt the Guard began disembarking. They were not as pre-sentable as they have been. They were warm —their faces bathed in perspiration and their uniforms covered with cinders and dust, but despite these drawbacks they looked welf. The friends of the company disregarded these trivial points, and rushing forward, welcomed the boys back to Atlanta.

In the center of the shed Ensign Camp had planted himself with the company's beautiful flag, and while the hurried handshaking and "how do you do's" were going on the Guard flocked around the ensign. As soon as they had all left the coach the company, headed by the delegation which went up to New Hoiland Sunday to greet those who had been to Morehead, commanded by Lieutenant Sparks, marched out of the main entrance on to Wall street where they formed. Here they were welcomed by the formed. Here they were welcomed by the Governor's Horse Guard, forty strong, under command of Captain Milledge, and in full uniform. After a short consultation between Captains Jackson and Milledge, the Horse Guard wheeled into Loyd street and after them came the band, then the delegation, under Lieutenant Sparks followed. But in this procession, which was a striking and pleasant one, the most attractive element was the returning members of the company Under command of their gallant captain they stepped off like veterans, and their uniforms gave them the appearance of passed through a hard campaign. damaged, and the watermelons began to leak ship of M. L. Crowel. They were originally instructed by O. J. Wallace, of this city, who is an experienced musician who understands his business. During their stay in Atlanta the band serenaded several citizens and entertained many of our people with their good music.

The engine as it struck turned to one side, and the driving wheels flew round reversed as if it was making forty miles an bour. son and his men passed. Both con presented arms and as the Gate City disappeared climbing the steps leading their armory the Governor's Horse Guard sent up three rousing cheers. In the armory the company formed and Captain Jackson addressed them. He congratulated them upon their safe return and complimented each and every member for complimented each and every member for the gentlemanly way in which he had con-ducted hemself during the ex-cursion. After Captain Jackson's speech, the Governor's Horse Guard entered the room and were received with applaus. Then both companies broke ranks. In or corner of the room were several kegs of been and a tub of punch. Everybody was d and with a view to drinking "yer health, yer please," they all crowd yer please," they all crowded around the kegs. Soon cries of "Jack son, Jackson," were heard, and of course the captain responded. This brought Captain Milledge to the front, and he spoke. Then Lieutenant Vorhis, of the Governor's Horse Guard, did the same. Finally the boys grew happy, and spying two policemen and a news-paper reporter, they seized them, and while a detachment held them, forced beer down their throats. Of the excursion the entire company speak

That night Mr. Henderson, of the Guard, asked Mr. Jenkins, who was in the ballroom, to come outside and adjust the matter by seeing Mr. Reinhardt. Mr. Jenkins went out with some of his friends. He met Mr. Beerman, Mr. Henderson and Mr. Reinhardt. A difficulty began when Mr. Ridge came up, and he and Mr. Beerman undertook to quiet the parties. Mr. Jenkins drew his pistol and fired, the ball wounding Mr. Ridge, When Mr. Jenkins fired he left the place.

The went out for a fish and were about ten mi from land when they were capsized. As the boat went over each man thought he saw death, but when each of the thirteen had death, but when each of the thirteen had grappled the boat they began to feel better. The captain of their boat was a negro and he told them to hold on. They were in water up to their necks and for five hours they lived thinking each moment would be their last. Several boats were out bunting for them. The boys tried to attract their attention, but failed and as they observed the boats receding from sight, their hearts sank within them. Mr. Elsas offered one of the negro men $175 to swim ashore and secure aid, but as they were twenty miles out the darkey thought his hold on the boat the safest place. Several waves rolled over the boys and the boat and when they came up again they instantly counted their number to see if all were present.

After long waiting a boat came in sight and the crew sent up three cheers. Their rescue was accidental. The boat that found them contained a sheriff and was returning to land. The capsized boat was towed to land fifteen miles from Morehead a nd some of the boys wanted to walk but the sheriff carried them by water in safety. The thirteen now call themselves the "shipwrecked crew." Mr. White is called the admiral and Pope Culon "Dick Deadeve." The boys express themselves as highly de-ighted with the trip.

"Only 13 Seconds in 3 Months."

J. P. STEVENS WATCH CO.—Gentlemen: It affords me pleasure to say I have worn one of your watches eight months, and although I have carried the finest watches made by other *merican factories, never had one to keep the almost absolutely perfect time that the Atlanta watch does. Its variation during the past three months has not exceeded 13 seconds, considering the fact that it is employed in rough railway service. I think this record has few equals, in fact I would not give it for any other watch I ever saw, and think that it will supercede all others for railroad use. Yours truly.

H. Z. HARRIS, Conductor R. & D. R. R.

"He stad Tried Them All."

J. P. STEVENS WATCH CO.—Gentlemen: After testing very critically the watch I got of you. I have pleasure in saying that for accuracy and reliability, it far surpasses my expectations.

I have worn the finest watches made by the most celebrated factories in this country, some of them costing three times as much as my present one, but never had anything that was near as accurate as the one gotten of you. I never have changed the hands since I got it three months ago, and it runs from one month's end to another without any appreciable variation.

Respectfully yours.

T. B. PALMER.

The Northwest Heard From.

APPLETON, Wisconsin, April 23d, 1883.

J. P. STEVENS WATCH CO.—Gentlemen: The watch I bought of you is doing well. I set it by standard time in Milwaukee, 16 daysago, and have been comparing it with one of the best regulators, as yet I cannot discover that it has varied even the fraction of a minute.

Yours respectfully,

W. S. WARNER.

"Always to be Relied Upon for Correct Time."

GENTLEMEN: Having worn the watch I bought of you six months, in a business where there is rough work. I am delighted to say it keeps perfect time, and I would not give it for any watch I ever saw. It is always to be relied upon for correct time. I shall never want any other. Very truly yours, CHAS. J. ZELLNER, Forsyth, Ga.

We have hundred of such recommendations.

We have hundreds of such recommendations. Over 500 of our watches are now in the hands of railroad men, and all giving satisfaction. Prices very low for first-class time keepers. Call and ex-amine our improved watches, or send for catalogue, J. P. STEVENS WATCH CO., 34 Whitehall Street.

SPOT CASH HOUSE.

See my bargains for this week. The grand closing sale con-

Governor's Horse Guards.

In return for the handsome compliment paid him by the company at the recent ball, when the elegant silver service was presented to him, Captain lohn Milledge invited the Governor's Horse Guard to his residence last Saturday night. The lawn was beautifully illuminated and a gay "stag dance" was enjoyed by the boys. Refreshments were served in most hospitable style. The evening was one long to be remembered by the boys.

The Game Not Bagged. Captain Aldridge returned Saturday from down the Central road. He failed to secure the arrest of Mr. Cheatham. Mr. Hancock. however, expresses his determination to pursue him until an arrest is made.

At the Station House.

The following cases were booked at the stationnouse last night: Nathan Burke, larceny from the nouse; Lewis Moss, larceny from the house; Walter Johnson, on warrant; William Foots, convict Charles Johnson, burglary.
